Focus on customer orientation

Consumers refuse to compromise – and the same goes for us! That's why, for over 50 years, we have been committed to one thing: satisfying our customers' needs.

Whilst it was once mainly warehouse workers and forwarding agents who used edding markers to label bags and boxes, today we have millions of fans all around the world with the most diverse range of demands and expectations when it comes to writing and labelling. We achieve this with our edding “special-purpose pens” which, owing to special inks and other product features, are all individually tailored for a specific use. Our range is no longer limited to permanent markers but also includes, for example, non-hazardous products with food colouring-based inks which are particularly suited for children, intelligent solutions for DIY enthusiasts and products which are required to meet very specific demands in the fields of industry and research.

Yet all of our markers have two important features in common – their durability and outstanding quality. That applies not only to the ink but to the pens as well. It comes as no surprise then, that we often receive letters such as that from one woman who found an old pack of edding fibrepens which she had used as a child in a removal box. Today it is her children who use them to colour in! And who knows – maybe one day even her grandchildren.

As such, it is fitting that we keep an eye on tomorrow's world. After all, the harmony between commercial operations and environmental responsibility is a key element of our company philosophy. Our policy of protecting the environment begins with the production and continues through to retail, where, for example, edding presents products in environmentally friendly packaging. Our markers are, for the most part, refillable; moreover, we also extend the life of our products with replaceable tips. The EcoLine range represents the next step in our commitment to the environment. Further information can be found online at www.edding.com.

Environmental concept

Tomorrow's environment has long been a concern of ours. That's why a sustainable, socially responsible business policy has been our focus since the company was founded. This includes modern, resource-friendly production methods, a photovoltaic system for harvesting solar energy, the commissioning of a block heat and power plant as well as the procurement of an electric car. Furthermore, many of our markers are refillable and the felt tips replaceable.

We are now extending our contribution to protecting the environment with the EcoLine range. The caps and barrels of the markers are produced using recycled material or from a renewable resource.

At least 70% of the cap and barrel are made from a renewable resource, the filter fibres are made from recycled material. Particularly suited for marking and highlighting text passages and notes, e.g., in letters, minutes, tables and books.

Writing, highlighting and correcting

A common problem in our busy lives can be an untidy desk, edding with its various fineliners, rollerballs, gel pens and highlighters can organise even the most chaotic of work stations. These tireless workers help, for example to highlight the essential points of text, notes and appointments - often with indelible ink. And there is no need to worry if you make a mistake, as edding also offers the ideal tools for making corrections, whether that be correction pens or erasers. And by the way: Many products can be quickly and simply refilled for the sake of the environment.

Fineliners and ink rollers – disposable

For writing and signing. The tips which, for the most part, are metal-shrouded for protection, guarantee fine writing results. The rollerballs are also suitable for making carbon copies.

Blister cards

At edding, we believe in keeping things “transparent”. That’s why selected markers, writing instruments and office supplies are also available on blister cards. And because we take environmental considerations into account not only when designing our products but also when designing our packaging, we avoid the use of PVC, polystyrene and CFCs foams.
